Catherine Minervini

Catherine launched her career as an interior designer in New York City working for award-winning firms such as Hardy Holzman Pfeiffer Associates. The Big Apple helped lay the groundwork for what would become a robust marketing career in the commercial interior design profession. Catherine worked for the Interface companies, ultimately rising up in the ranks to Vice President of Marketing for Bentley Prince Street in Los Angeles. In 2009, Catherine went on to launch her own consultancy, Green Owl Studio, a collaborative workshop and a culmination of her experience in interior design, branding and marketing. Today, Catherine has returned to the New York City region and is an A&D Regional Manager for Sunbrella, where she can tap into her three decades of experience in the commercial architecture + interior design industry and share her passion for storytelling.

Catherine attended Moore College of Art + Design in Philadelphia where she earned a Bachelors of Fine Arts degree in Interior Design. She served on the Hoboken Zoning Board in New Jersey. During her time at Bentley Prince Street in Los Angeles, Catherine held the position of Vice President of Membership, then Executive Director for the Chapter Board of Directors for the International Interior Design Association of Southern California (IIDA). Also during her time in Los Angeles, she served on the Board of Directors for the Architecture + Design Museum in Los Angeles for 6 years. Catherine serves on Moore College of Art + Design's Alumni Council Development Committee.
